Our Know-How.

Polymers and fragrances are very incompatible when it comes to homogenisation and production process. Why?

- * Polymers tend to have solid states while that of fragrances is liquid.
- * Injection moulding machines do not accept liquids as raw materials.
- * Polymers do not absorb fragrances or essential oils and, if they do, it is in a very low percentage.

At Scent Emotions we have developed our own unique technology to manufacture various polymeric compounds capable of containing large amounts of fragrance (up to 50%).

One of the main characteristics of our technology is that both manufacturing and injection processes are done at low temperatures. This ensures that the volatile compounds of fragrances are not destroyed which, in most cases, makes the original fragrance unrecognisable.
